

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

Sanitary information from the Argentine Republic.

Buenos Ayres.—A dispatch dated the 3d instant states that in November, 1904, there were in that city, with an estimated population of about 900,000, 1,305 deaths. Also that during the eleven months ended in November, there had disembarked at that port some 66,269 immigrants.

A dispatch dated the 11th instant states that compulsory vaccination of all children born during the year 1904 had been ordered by the Government.

Also that the health authorities of that port had obtained the sum of 200,000 pesos, about $100,000, for improvement of the sanitary stations of the port.

A dispatch dated the 10th instant stated that the employees of hotels and cheap restaurants were now daily required to report themselves for examination as regards their health under a penalty of 500 pesos.

Sanitary statistics from Victoria, Espirito Santo, Brazil.

Population, 7,000. During the year 1904 there were in this city 349 deaths registered.

Mortuary statistics from Uberaba, State of Minas Geraes.

During the year 1904 there were in all, in this city, which has a population of a little more than 30,000, 322 deaths—whites 195, mulattoes 78, and blacks 49.

By months the deaths were as follows: January, 27; February, 31; March, 22; April, 26; May, 29; June, 22; July, 21; August, 23; September, 30; October, 30; November, 30; December, 31.

By ages as follows: Infants, 19; less than 7 years, 114; 7 to 49 years, 120; 50 to 79 years, 60; 80 to 99 years, 9. The causes of death include enteric fever 2, scarlet fever 1, typhus fever 1, and 26 from tuberculosis.

Sanitary statistics from Bahia, State of Bahia.

During the month of December, 1904, there were 30 deaths from tuberculosis, 2 from dysentery, 2 from enteric fever, and 1 from variola. During the month there were entered at the smallpox hospital 44 persons ill with this disease. Of this number attacked with variola, 4 had been vaccinated; the remainder had not been vaccinated. During the month 82 disinfections were made, 38 for cases of variola, 30 for tuberculosis, 10 for bubonic plague, 2 for enteric fever, and 2 for dysentery.

Mortuary statistics from Pernambuco, State of Pernambuco.

During the last two weeks of December, 1904, there were in all, in this city, 353 deaths, including 116 from variola, 61 from tuberculosis, 18 from malarial fevers, 4 from syphilis, 4 from cancer, 1 from grippe, 2 from dysentery, 4 from septicaemia, 1 from beriberi, and 4 from erysipelas.